VelvetPulse

Your body.
Your experience.

Discover VelvetPulse. A personal space for understanding, touch and new experiences. On your own and together.

For adults · Android · German and English

Understand more.
Feel more at home.

Sometimes closeness begins with a question. Sometimes with touch. And sometimes with learning to listen to yourself again.

An experience that moves with you

VelvetPulse brings sex education together with body awareness, practical exercises and space for your relationship. Choose an entry point that feels right today. There is no prescribed pace and no particular experience you have to achieve.

Four areas, one shared world

Today invites you in. Learn explains the connections. Practice makes room for experience. Us gives your relationship a space of its own. Knowledge, exercises and audio guidance are also there for you when you use the app on your own.

Curiosity can be the beginning.

Today	Your personal starting point	03
Learn	Understanding your body and desire	04-07
Practice	Body, thoughts and guidance	08-09
Us	Closeness and wishes for two	10-11

A next step. Your own.

Open the app and find a calm way into your day.

A little direction

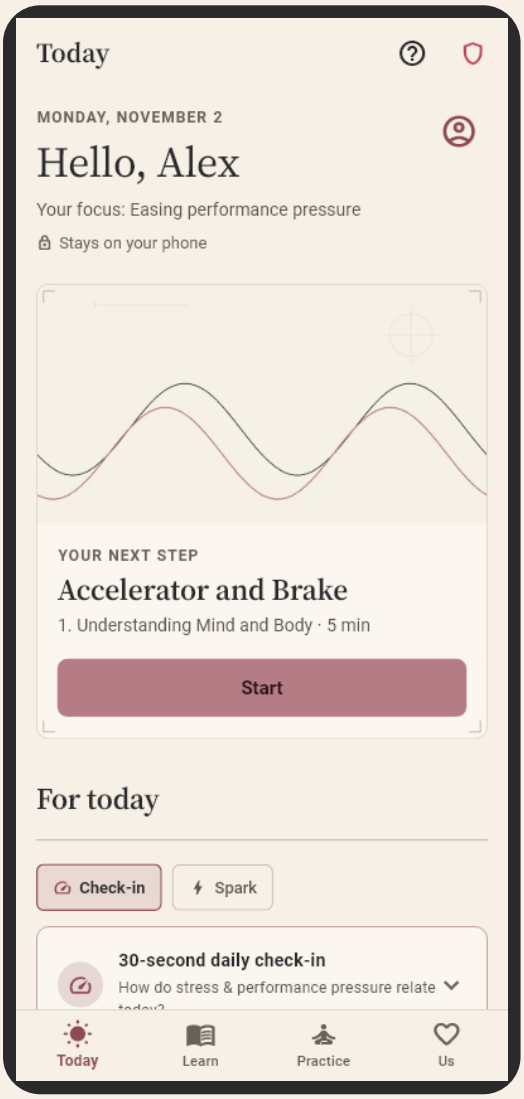

Your next step takes you to the next unfinished lesson. At the beginning, the suggestion reflects your chosen focus. If you would rather explore, the other areas remain close at hand.

Pause for a moment

The 30-second check-in lets you notice how stress and desire relate today. A small moment of attention, without another obligation.

Listen or reach out

Guided audios invite you to feel. A spark can let your partner know what you are in the mood for. You decide whether today calls for knowledge, quiet or connection.

The illustration shows a rendered app screen with sample data.

Knowledge that connects with life.

27 courses and 128 lessons bring clear explanations together with practical experience. These totals include Spicy content.

Read, listen, explore

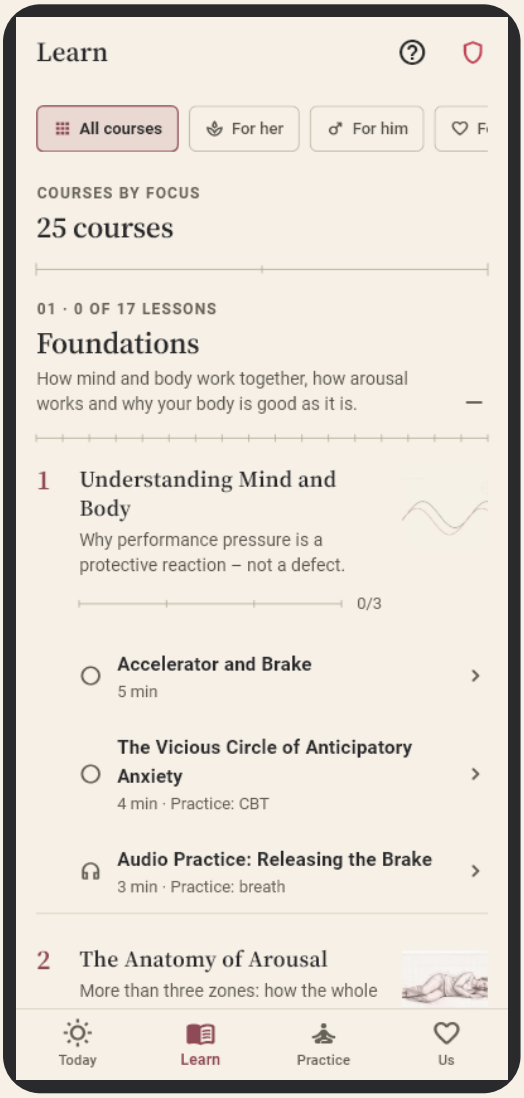

Each lesson offers a text, a recording and a question for reflection. Exercises invite you to try things at your own pace. Where it fits, a lesson takes you straight to a related practice.

Find your way

Six themes organise the course collection. Filters help you find material for yourself or for the two of you. Subtle progress indicators show where you can continue.

Make things visible

Pencil drawings and explanatory diagrams give ideas a visual form. You can enlarge illustrations in the app and look more closely.

25 courses are accessible without Spicy. Two more courses and individual deeper explorations appear in Spicy mode.

From body knowledge to imagination.

You do not have to begin at the beginning or work through everything in order. Follow the question that matters to you now.

01 / Foundations

How mind and body work together. The anatomy of arousal, body image and the spectator trap: understand before trying to change.

02 / Acceptance and release

Recognise shame, pressure to perform and difficult expectations. Presence and self-compassion invite a kinder relationship with yourself.

03 / Exploring yourself

Pelvic floor, personal preferences and body awareness. Desire through different life stages, and a more conscious relationship with stimulation.

04 / Desire as a couple

Talk about wishes, navigate differences in desire and make space in daily life. Closeness can grow without having to lead to a particular goal.

05 / Touch

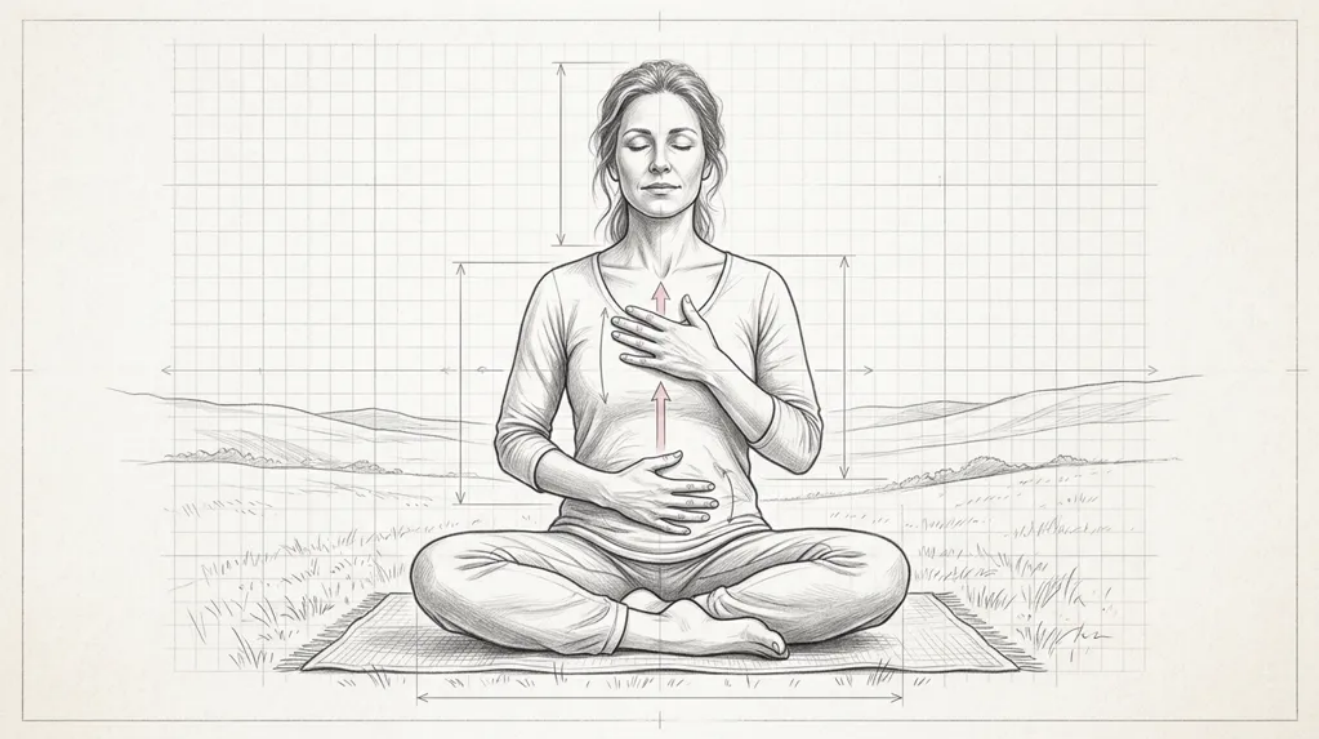

Female and male touch, massage, voice, breath and comfortable positions. Practical ideas with room for feedback.

06 / Fantasy and play

Fantasy, leading and surrender, scenarios for two and toys. Optional Spicy mode adds more direct explorations.

Every body answers differently.

Get to know your own a little better.

Understand the connections

Desire involves the body, attention, life circumstances and relationships. VelvetPulse explains ideas such as the accelerator-and-brake model and invites you to recognise what encourages or inhibits your own desire.

Notice the differences

Explore breathing, tension, touch and pleasant stimulation. The exercises connect female and male anatomy with an open question: what feels right for you?

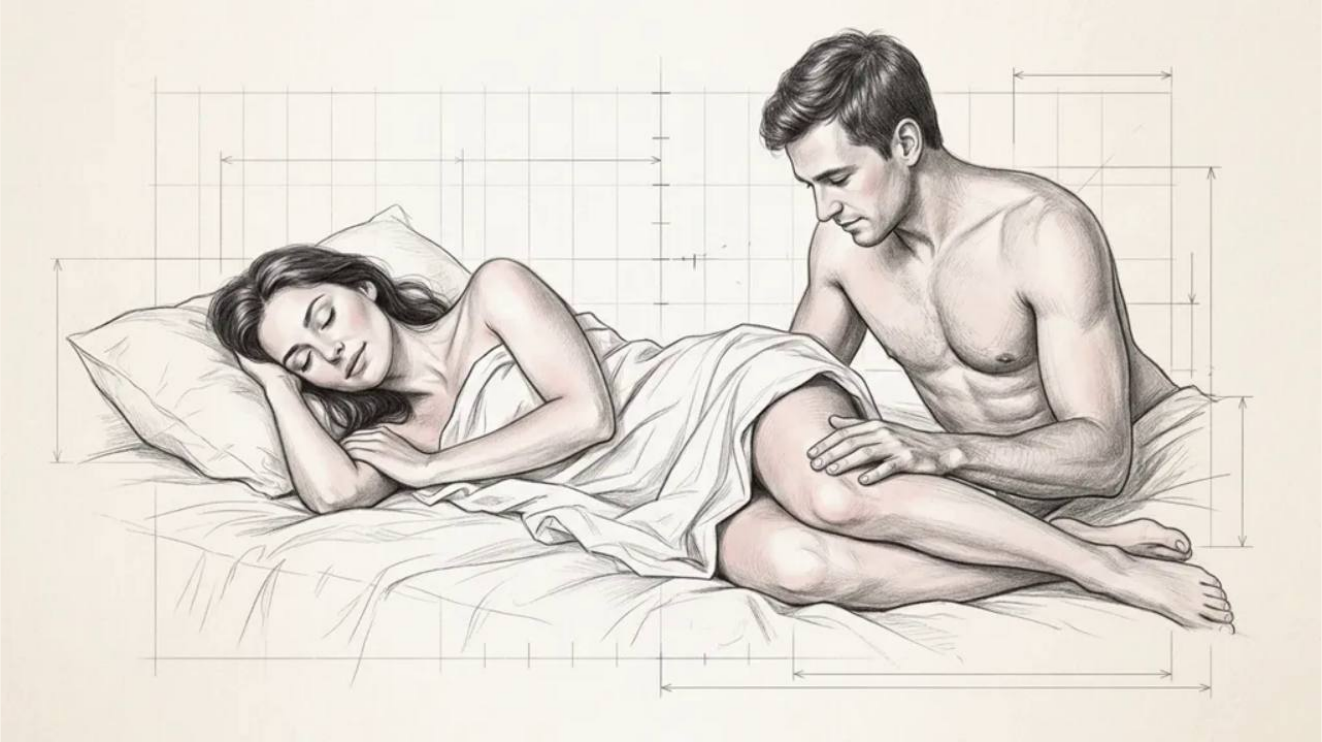

Find words for your preferences

Your personal desire profile lets you collect what you enjoy. Share it with your partner if you choose. What you would rather discover privately remains your decision.

Your body is not an exam.

Attention you can feel.

Good touch is not a fixed recipe. It grows through contact.

Notice more

Courses on touch and intimate massage explore how pressure, pace, location and pauses can change an experience. Try things and give each other feedback.

Give and receive

The guided evening together includes a change of roles. Singing bowls mark transitions; quiet passages leave time to notice your own sensations.

Keep consent specific

Talk about wishes and limits beforehand. Agree on a stop word, and keep the freedom to change or stop at any time. Every invitation may be declined.

20, 30 or 45 minutes for an evening together. All figures in the illustrations are adults.

From thinking to feeling.

Simple tools help you make conscious practice part of everyday life.

Two sides of pelvic floor practice

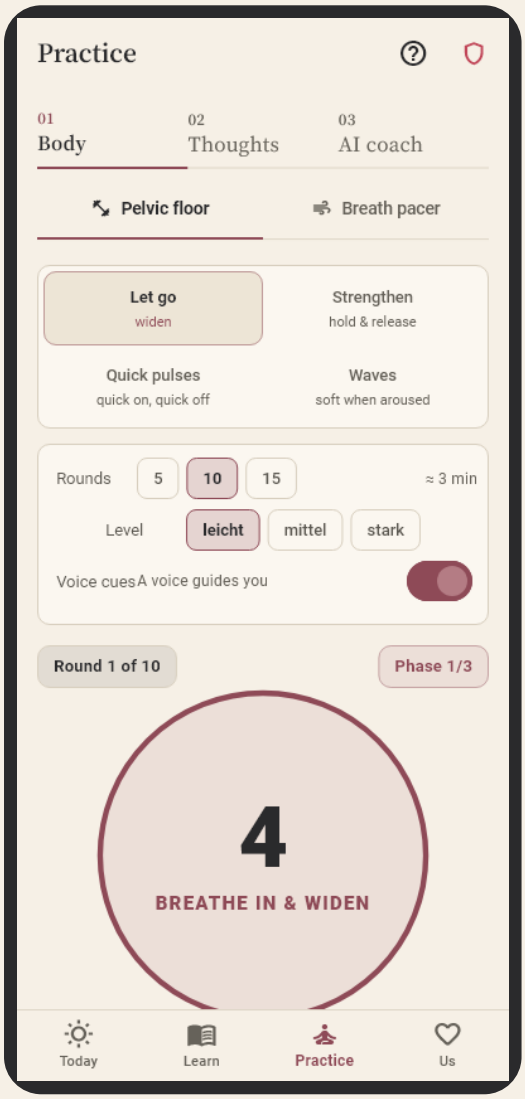

Releasing matters just as much as contracting. The timer guides four kinds of practice: release, strengthening, pulses and waves. Voice prompts support the sequence.

A steady rhythm for breathing

The breathing pacer makes a rhythm visible, including 4-7-8 breathing. Let the guidance and your own comfort work together, rather than forcing yourself through an exercise.

Practice, not a performance test

Choose a manageable session, notice how you feel afterwards, and stop if something hurts or becomes uncomfortable. The point is awareness, not the biggest possible numbers.

When your mind gets too loud.

Not every thought needs to have the final word.

The reframing journal

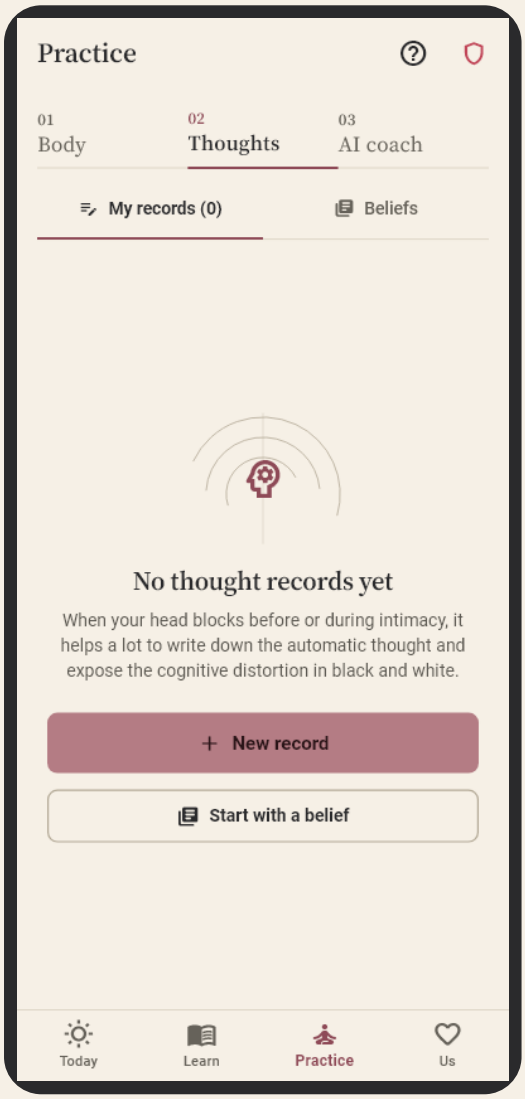

Write down a difficult situation and the thought that came with it. What supports it, and what challenges it? What other view might be possible? The structure draws on methods from cognitive behavioural therapy.

A glance at everyday life

The brief check-in helps you notice stress and desire. You do not have to explain yourself or achieve a good score. An honest entry is enough.

Support in the moment

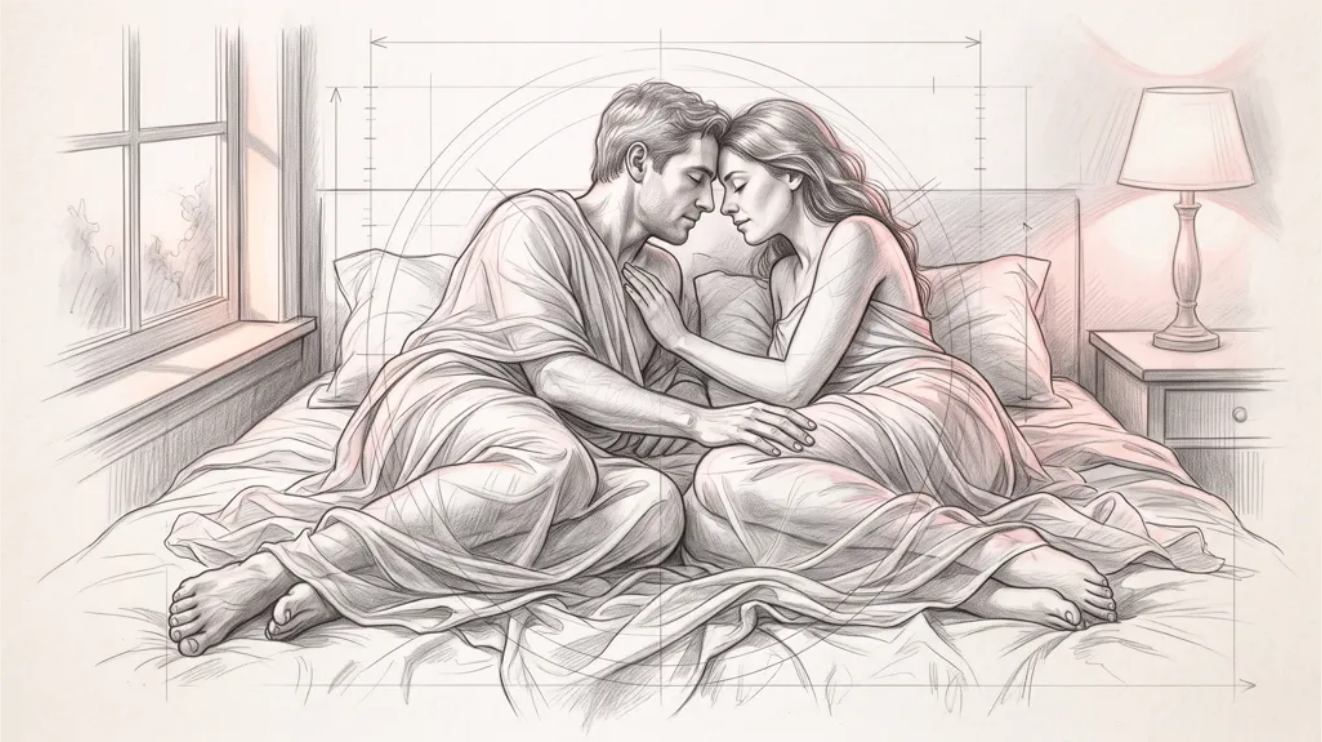

The SOS area offers short prompts for before, during and afterwards when pressure or anxiety arise. It is easy to reach and complements the longer work with courses and exercises.

You are allowed to slow down.

A space of your own for being close.

Stay connected without always having to find the perfect words for every need.

Invite and connect

Connect by invitation or QR code. You need neither an account nor a phone number. The couple channel is end-to-end encrypted.

Small signals, clear words

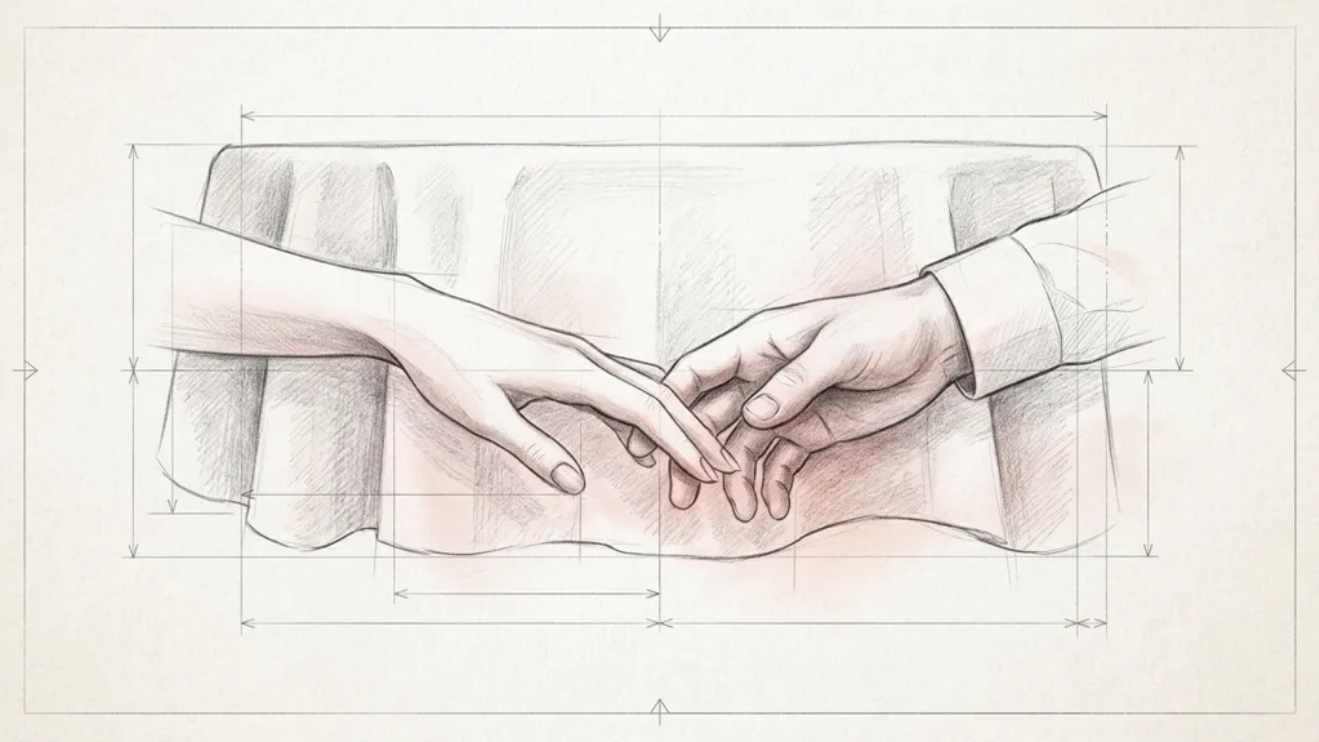

A spark shows what you feel like today, including when you are not in the mood. Use the chat to exchange thoughts. Read receipts can be switched off.

Learn together

Share a lesson or answer the same reflection question. Your partner's answer only appears once you have answered yourself. Each perspective gets its own space first.

You decide what you share.

The fantasy map helps you explore wishes without putting pressure on each other.

Answer for yourself first

Each person chooses independently: Yes, please. Maybe. Rather not. Shared wishes and ideas to discuss become visible. A no remains private.

Then begin a conversation

A match is an invitation to talk, not an arrangement or consent to a specific act. Decide together whether and how you would like to try something.

Leave room for change

Preferences are not a contract. Today may feel different from yesterday. Spicy mode adds further ideas and scenarios to explore.

A maybe makes room for conversation.
A yes remains freely given.

More intensity. Your choice.

When you want to explore further, Spicy opens a more direct, sensual layer of the same world.

Content of its own

Spicy Solo and Spicy for Two, additional lessons and more intense levels of the body journey and the evening together. They only appear after you deliberately enable Spicy in your profile.

More possibilities together

Further fantasies, scenarios and hot sparks extend the couple space. There are messages that disappear after reading and experimental, encrypted photos for a single viewing.

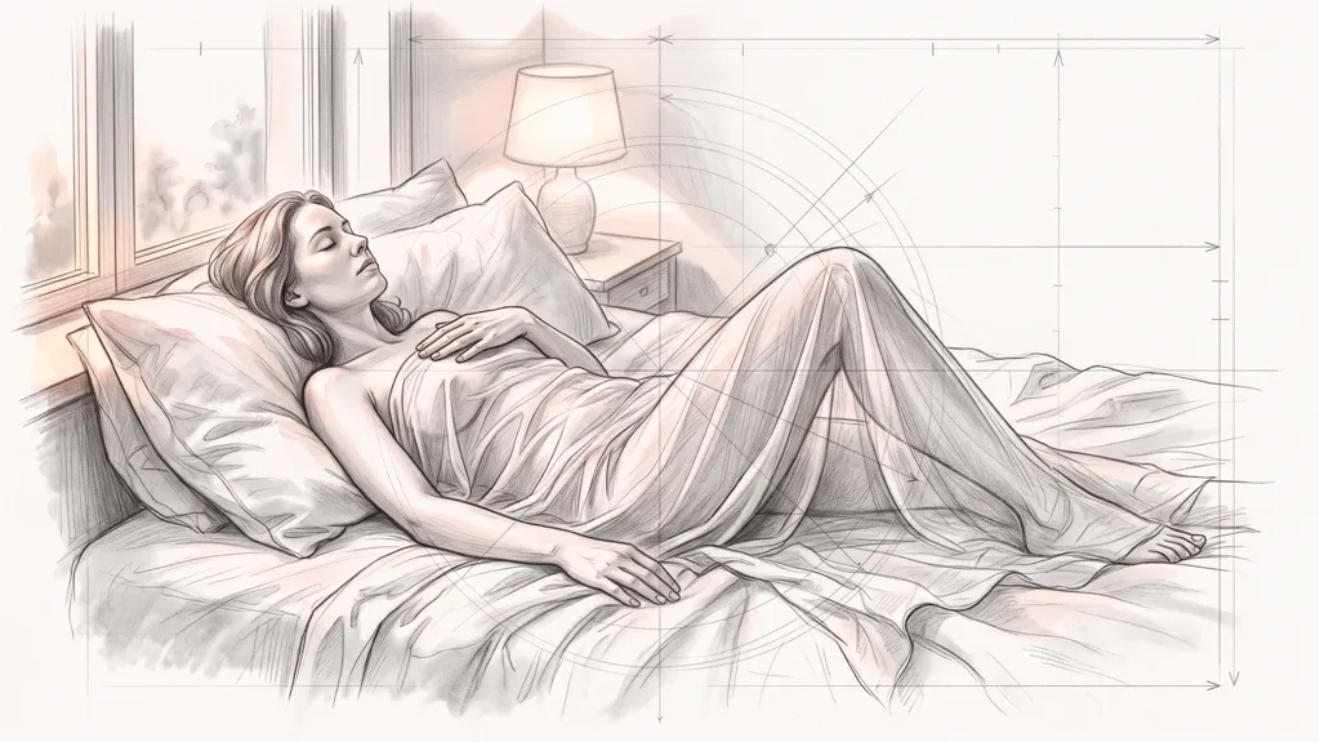

You keep the choice

You can switch Spicy off again at any time. Boundaries, consent and the freedom to stop apply at every level. The atmosphere deepens; expectations do not have to.

Single-view photos use a direct connection and do not work on every network. Disappearing content cannot prevent someone photographing the screen with another device.

A voice.
Time for yourself.

Close your eyes, listen and let your attention settle in your body.

Body journey

10, 20 or 30 minutes of self-awareness. Choose the intensity; the voice guides breath and body, leaving time for your own sensations.

An evening together

20, 30 or 45 minutes for two. Arrive, exchange touch with a change of roles, and wind down. A singing bowl and a subtle sound bed support the pauses.

Drift-off journey and dream evening

60, 90 or 120 minutes of drift-off guidance, or a 30-, 45- or 60-minute dream evening. The voice and repetitions grow quieter and make space for sleep.

Victoria and Martin · German and English. Download the recordings you want as packages, then listen offline. A new audio edition has been prepared with balanced pacing, considered sentence pauses and pronunciation care; release in the packages is still pending.

Your moment stays. Even as you move on.

One player follows you through the app, so listening no longer depends on staying on a single screen.

Room to move

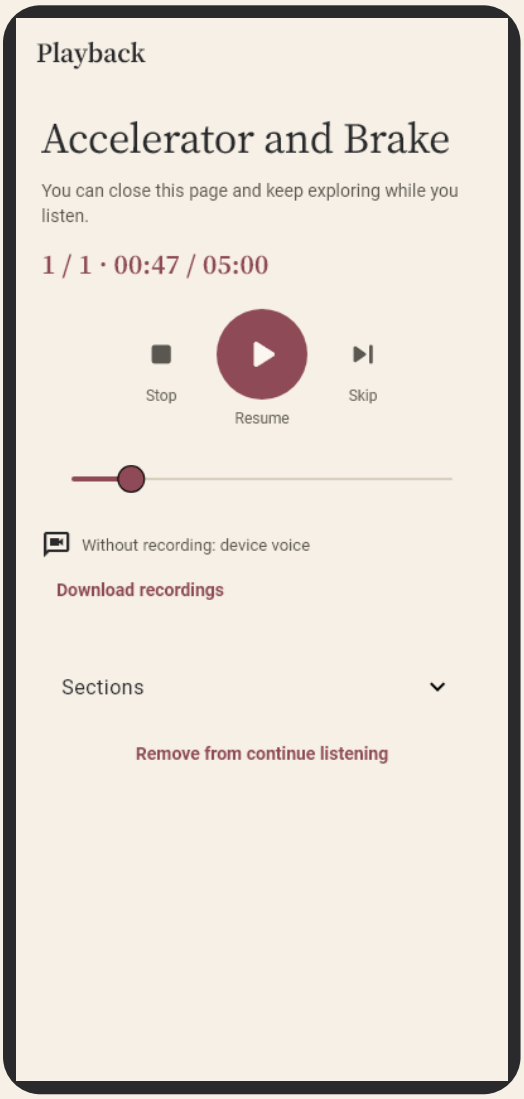

Explore other sections while your recording plays. The mini player keeps pause and a route back to playback within reach. You can leave the audio page without ending your session.

Pick up where you left off

The saved sequence and recording position help you continue. An evening you have already put together can be found again. When you return, you decide when playback resumes.

Know what is ready

See whether a recording is available or a package needs downloading before you begin. Downloaded recordings play offline. For some individual sessions, the device voice can step in; it restarts the current section.

Prepared for the upcoming beta. Device speech and recorded audio have different timings; shared listening requires the matching recording on both devices.

Two devices.
One shared moment.

Experience the same audio session without having to place a single phone between you.

Invite. Settle in. Get ready.

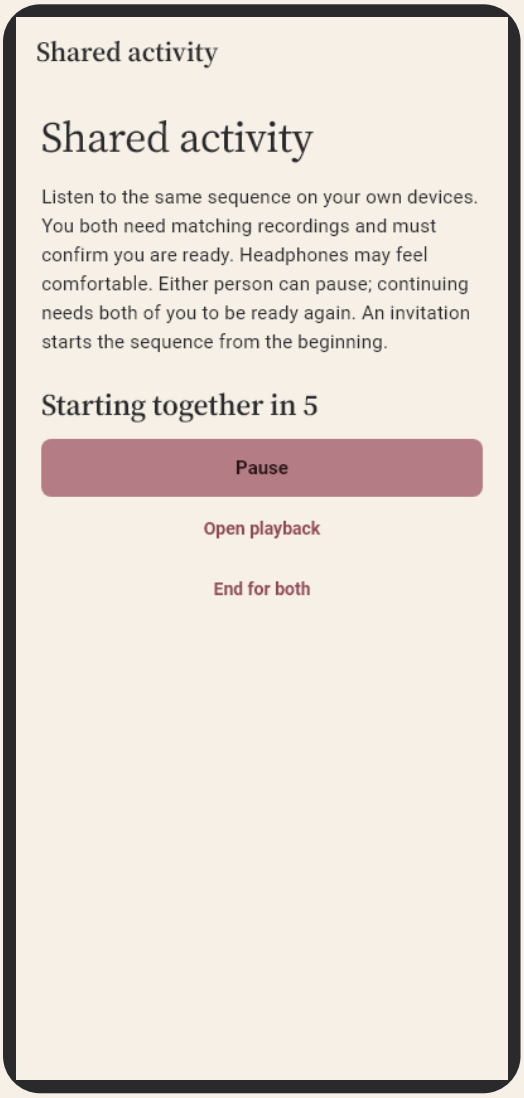

Connect in your couple space and choose to accept the invitation. Once both of you are ready, a shared countdown sets the start. Each person listens on their own device.

A pause belongs to both of you

While connected, either person can pause shared playback. Continue only when both are ready again. Closeness needs neither endurance nor an explanation for taking a break.

Your impression comes first

An optional reflection leaves room for words and a feeling. Your partner's response becomes visible only after you have both successfully shared your own reflection.

Beta preview: matching recording on both devices, app open for invitations, connection for coordination. No guarantee of perfect timing; opposite perspectives are not synchronised.

One question.
A place to begin.

Sometimes you already know what is on your mind. All you need is a way into the right content.

Find your way more easily

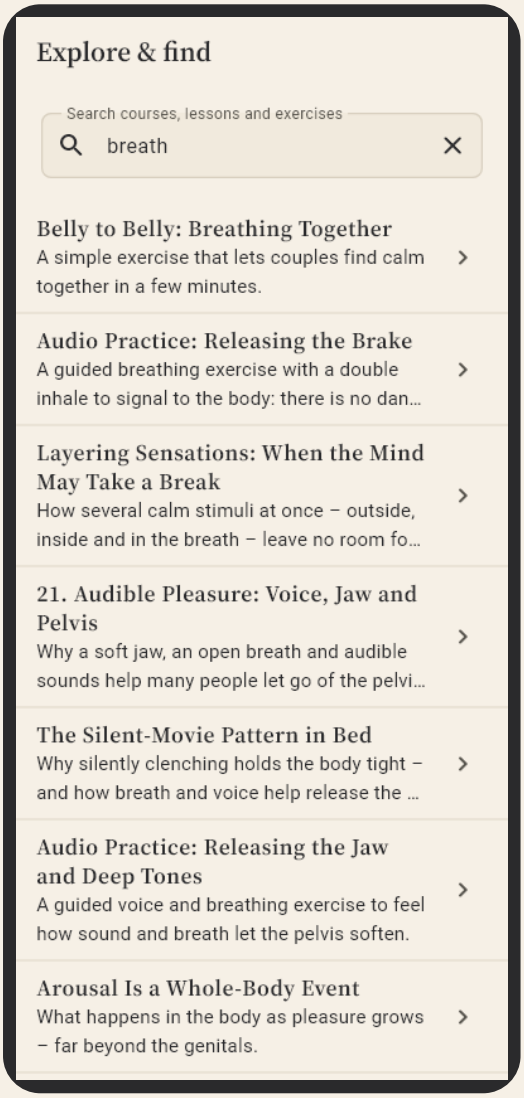

Look for courses, lessons, audio sessions and exercises in one place. A single term can lead from an initial question to useful knowledge or a relevant practice.

Your chosen boundaries stay in place

Search shows content available in your current mode. Spicy content stays behind the Spicy mode you deliberately choose to enable.

Private means outside the index

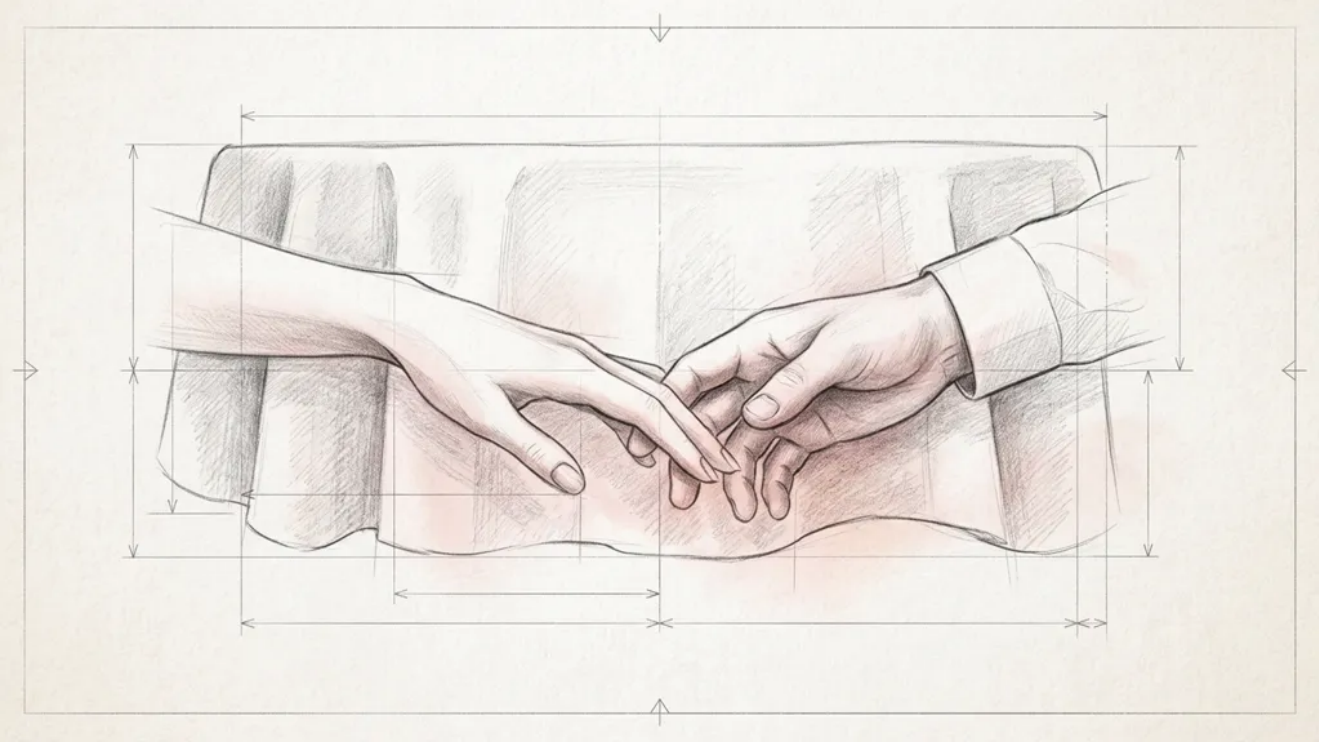

Your query is processed locally, without cloud search or a search history. Your journal, private messages and coach conversations are not searched.

New search prepared for the upcoming beta. The illustration is a rendered app view using fictional example data.

Understand. Feel. Let it resonate.

Individual pieces of content become a small, connected experience that fits into your day.

Understand

An existing lesson offers an idea to take with you. An optional path connects knowledge with a relevant exercise and a moment to reflect.

Feel

Try what feels right today. Pause, skip a step or explore the app freely. No streaks, no leaderboard and no pressure to perform.

Let it resonate

Capture a thought if you wish. A brief moment of attention can be enough, without reaching a particular outcome. Your pace remains the measure.

Prepared for the upcoming beta. Personal paths use existing content; they are neither a therapy plan nor a performance programme.

The same encounter. Another perspective.

Audio stories that describe an encounter from within: sensations, closeness and what often remains invisible from outside.

Explore perspectives

Choose a perspective and a Soft or Spicy version. Opposite perspectives on the same encounter follow the same sequence of scenes, creating a starting point for talking about different experiences.

Listen with attention

The stories run for around 15 to 25 minutes and are intended for listening while awake. In the player you can pause and move between scenes.

Share the same recording

The new shared player is prepared for the same recording on two devices. Different perspectives are not synchronised with one another. Downloaded versions remain available offline.

Adult characters, consensual encounters. The stories portray possible experiences, not a standard for how a body should feel.

Take your desire into the night.

And bring something of the night into your day.

A path through eight evenings

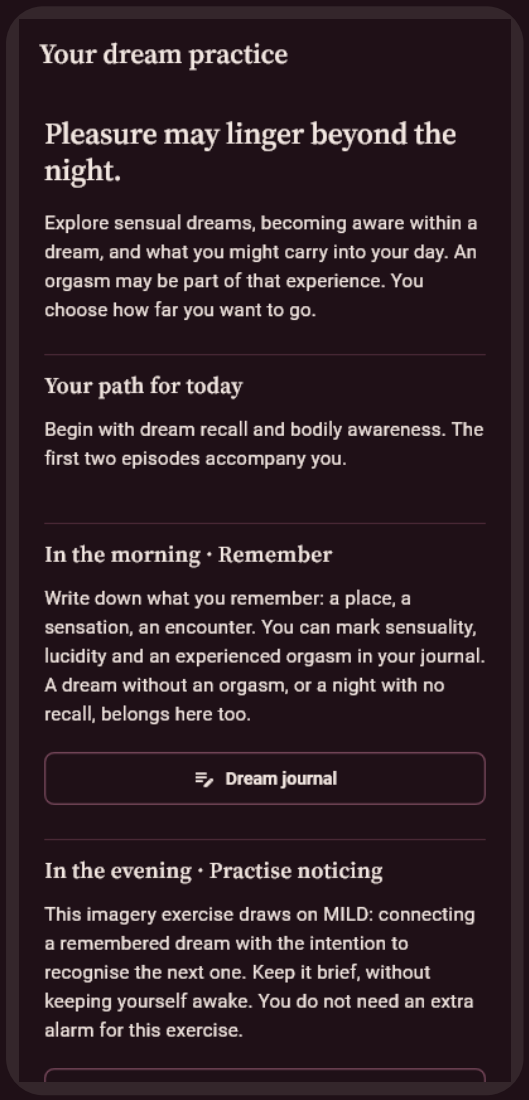

Desire in Dreams connects sensual body awareness before sleep with curiosity about lucid dreaming. The episodes build on each other; the next unlocks after two evenings of listening.

Follow your own thread

In dream practice, collect personal dream signs, choose a pleasant memory and prepare consciously for the evening. In the morning, record what stayed with you.

Open to your experience

Sensual dreams and experienced orgasms may be part of it. They do not have to be. Greater daytime desire is something to explore, not a promised effect.

No watch or wristband needed. If you are prone to sleep paralysis, leave lucid exercises aside. Restful sleep comes first.

Remember. Recognise. Carry it with you.

A personal practice with room to grow between one night and the next.

01 Remember

Write a few words in the morning or mark a dream as sensual or lucid. You can also record a night without recall. The private dream journal and weekly review help you find your own threads again.

02 Recognise

Create personal dream signs. A short visualisation links a pleasant memory with the intention to recognise a dream as a dream. Optional reality-check reminders use neutral wording during the day.

03 Carry it with you

Notice whether a pleasant memory still resonates in your waking body. If you choose, record restfulness, daytime desire, possible orgasms and a note. Edit or delete your observations later.

Dream signs and daily observations stay local and go neither to your couple channel nor to the AI coach. No success score, no automatic dream interpretation. Optional night waking remains a deliberate choice for a single night.

Space for questions on your mind.

Sometimes it helps to put a question into words.

An optional AI coach

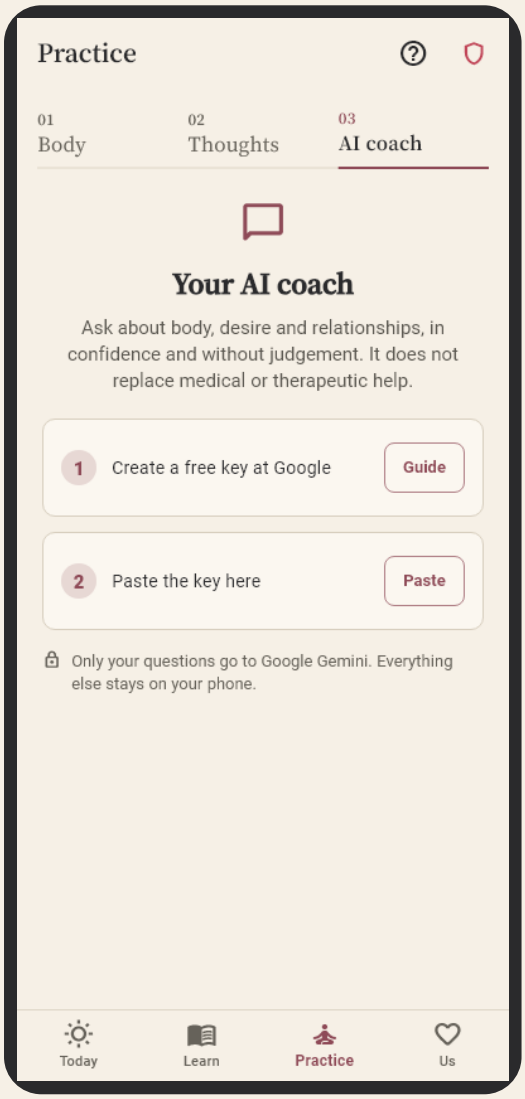

Explore questions about the body, desire and relationships. Relevant example questions offer an easy starting point. You choose what to type.

Your own access

The coach uses Google Gemini with your own API key. The app explains how to set it up. Questions you enter are sent to Google; the coach does not run entirely on your device.

A tool with limits

AI answers can be inaccurate. They replace neither diagnosis nor medical or psychotherapeutic care. Pain, symptoms or a personal crisis call for appropriate human support.

You can use all other core areas without setting up the AI coach. Private dream-practice data is not automatically sent to it.

A personal space needs clear boundaries.

You should be able to understand what stays on your device and when an external service is involved.

Local on your phone

Profile, progress, journal, check-ins and dream-practice entries are stored on the device. A password-protected, encrypted backup helps when moving to another phone. There is no central user account.

Discreet in everyday life

Fingerprint lock, hidden content in the app switcher and a neutral app icon support discretion. Notifications stay unobtrusive. The app asks before playing over the speaker and pauses when headphones disconnect.

Use connections consciously

The couple space sends end-to-end encrypted messages through external Nostr relays. A STUN service helps photos establish a direct connection. Questions to the optional AI coach go to Google. Downloads and updates also require a network connection.

No advertising profiles. No mandatory account. Encryption protects content; it does not make the use of external services universally anonymous.

Your pace.
Your atmosphere.

A few minutes are enough for a first step.

Paper

Night Paper

Spicy

01 / Install

VelvetPulse is available for Android 7 and later. Open the release page and install the appropriate APK. The guide explains the Android permission involved. New features may appear in the beta channel first. Further updates can be downloaded from within the app.

02 / Settle in

Choose your focus and explore Today or Learn. Download the audio packs you want once. You need neither a wearable nor a couple connection to begin.

03 / Make it yours

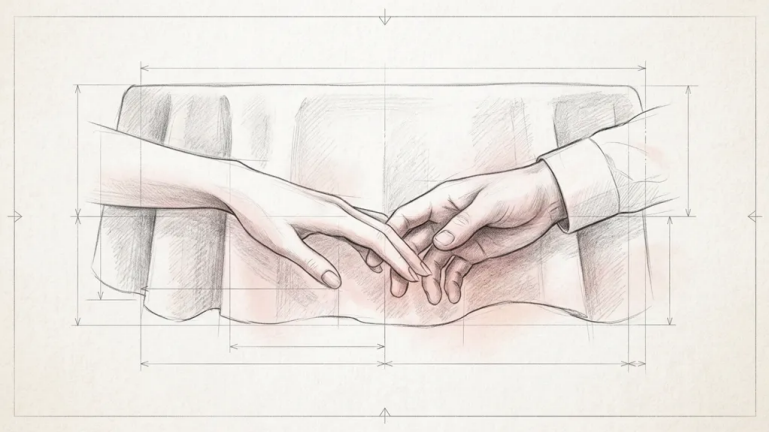

Paper offers a warm, light beginning. Night Paper interprets the same world in darker tones. Spicy brings burgundy and plum. The classic design remains available. Language, discretion and backup settings are in your profile.

As of 2 November 2026: new usability features are implemented and automatically tested, but not yet released; phone testing is pending. New recordings have passed technical checks and acoustic spot checks. Package integration is pending; the three extra Dream Practice audios are not yet integrated as app entries.

VelvetPulse

Discover your next step.

Body knowledge, sensuality and closeness. At your own pace.

App and installation guide

github.com/angemann-app/velvet_app/releases/latest

For adults. VelvetPulse does not replace medical or psychotherapeutic care. Individual experiences are allowed to differ.

Understand. Feel. Connect.